S.F. Free Folk Festival 2019

This year's San Francisco Free Folk Festival will be on Saturday June 8, from 12 noon to 10:00 PM. We'll be returning to last year's location at Everett Middle School.

Everett Middle School (450 Church Street, between 16th and 17th Streets in San Francisco) is a great festival location. It's right on the J Church Muni line and four blocks from 16th Street BART. Some on-site parking will be available for a parking fee and the school is fully ADA accessible.

We'll have many instrumental and song workshops and scheduled sessions, two performance stages, two dance workshop spaces, a family program and family crafts area, an open mic from 1:00–3:00 PM, and lots of room for impromptu music-making.

In the evening we'll have a concert, a ballroom dance and a contra/square/ceilidh dance. The Storytelling Association of California will be joining us again to offer storytelling workshops and sessions. And since this year is the 100th anniversary of Pete Seeger's birth, we'll have a special Pete Seeger-style sing-along on the Faith Petric stage and we'll have other Pete Seeger events as well.

As always, all festival events are free. This is made possible by donations of time and money. The festival is the Club's gift to San Francisco and the Bay Area, and Club members make the event happen. We need your help! We're all volunteers—the festival organizers, performers, workshop leaders, sound board operators and other volunteers all donate time to make the event a success every year. To volunteer, go to the volunteer page on the festival website sffolkfest.org or email sffff-volunteer@googlegroups.com.

We need financial donations as well. Though everyone's time is donated, there are unavoidable expenses: for renting the site, insurance, and more. We accept many donations at the festival, and donations can be made ahead of time too via the festival website. We also encourage formal festival sponsorships. For more information, go to the festival website sffolkfest.org and click Support the Festival, or email sffff-sponsorship@googlegroups.com.

To find out more, including the planned schedule of performers and workshops, visit the festival website at sffolkfest.org. This year's festival coordinators are Daniel Hersh, Amelia Hogan, Todd Silverstein, Glen Van Lehn and Tes Welborn. Contact them at sffff-directors@googlegroups.com.

Musical Meetings

Musical meetings of the San Francisco Folk Music Club are held every 2nd and 4th Friday at Cyprian’s ARC, 2097 Turk Street (at Lyon), San Francisco. There is plenty of street parking, but if you can't find anything closer, you may park in the blood bank lot at Turk and Masonic. Cyprian's asks that if we park in the lot, we use a parking pass. Parking passes are stored on the info table right inside the front entrance of the church. You can pull up to the front entrance and step inside to get one before you park. You can keep it in your car for future use since they are not dated.

Singing and jamming start at 8:00 pm; we start clean-up at 11:30 and need to leave by midnight. Two of the rooms require earlier leaving times. Bring finger-food snacks and beverages if you can. Guests are always welcome, and no one is expected to “perform”. Cyprian’s charges us rent; we ask those who can to donate $5 to $10 per evening, but if you can’t donate, we still want you to join us!

In consideration of our members' allergies and other concerns, only service animals are permitted at SFFMC events, and all our events are fragrance-free. The wearing of perfumes or heavily-scented products is not permitted. If a situation arises that cannot be easily remedied, members may be asked to show responsibility by taking their pet home or going home to change out of clothing that has picked up the offending scents.

Fundraiser for the SFFMC: The Ballad Quilt

by Casey Casebeer

A group of SFFMC members has hand-sewn a quilt featuring their favorite traditional music, and will be offering it in a raffle to benefit the SFFMC's Carp Harmony.

Look for the Ballad Quilt on display at the San Francisco Free Folk Festival this year, on June 8, 2019, with more information on when and how you can buy raffle tickets to win it, and benefit SFFMC in the process!

Storytelling is one of the oldest human activities. If you sing the story, it becomes a ballad. If the ballad has been polished by tumbling in the waves of oral tradition for a few hundred years, it's a traditional ballad. Quite a few friends of the British Isles traditional ballad have found a musical home in the SFFMC over the decades. This past year, a few of them transformed the audible into the visible by sewing a quilted wall hanging with images inspired by their favorite ballads.

Each of the twelve patches represents one of the narrative songs included in Harvard musicologist Francis Child's iconic 19th century collection The English and Scottish Popular Ballads.

This wall hanging was produced entirely by hand needlework. The primary techniques are traditional embroidery and appliqué (in which one fabric is sewn to the surface of another). The needleworkers have also used a wide variety of other textile skills: crazy-quilting; photographic transfer; multimedia collage with beads, sequins, bells, and wool roving; couching (in which ribbon, cord or braid is invisibly needle-tacked to the background); needle-painting (an embroidery technique that produces a gradual ombré-like variation in color); and intarsia (a multicolor knitting technique). The piecing of the quilt top, and the final quilting that joined the three layers of the piece were done on a traditional hand-quilting frame hanging from the ceiling.

Here are four of the stories featured on the quilt:

Thomas Rhymer, Child ballad #37. The white horse of the Queen of Elfland is about to step into the river of blood. "All of the blood that's shed on earth runs through the streams of that country." Techniques: Appliqué, couching and crazy quilt. Materials: Cotton, wool, rattail cord, wool roving, damasked silk trim, white silk charmeuse, bells. Design and needlework by Casey Casebeer.

The Three Ravens, Child ballad #26. Carrion crows discuss the fate of a knight lying dead in a nearby field. "There were three ravens in a tree..." Technique: Appliqué. Materials: Grosgrain ribbon, cotton. Design and needlework by Louise Oehler.

Tam Lin, Child ballad #39. A courageous girl rescues her lover from the elves, despite their efforts to frighten her away by transforming him into red-hot iron, a lion, and a snake. "But hold me fast and fear me not, and I'll do to you no harm." Techniques: Photographic transfer depicting a ceramic sculpture, embroidery, multimedia. Materials: Cotton, grosgrain ribbon, sequins, gold thread, wool roving. Ceramic sculpture and needlework by Elaine Belkind. Photograph by Deirdre McCarthy.

The Pickle Tree Carol, parody of Child ballad #54. A pregnant Mary craves pickles; the pickle tree provides a generous supply. "Twelve miles to the nearest deli is too many for me!" Intarsia knitting. Yarn, glass beads. Ballad parody by Lani Herrmann, design and needlework by Patience Young.

The needleworkers are Louise Oehler, Elaine Belkind, Patience Young, Casey Casebeer, Mary O'Brien, and Peg Healy. The design for the Eppie Morrie block was drawn by Sadie Damascus.

Pete Seeger and We Shall Overcome

by Peter Ross

Pete had an important role in the song "We Shall Overcome" that's not too well-known. Wikipedia's long article on the song says, "Pete Seeger, a founding member and for three years director of People's Songs, learned it from Horton's version in 1947. Seeger writes: "I changed it to 'We shall'... I think I liked a more open sound; 'We will' has alliteration to it, but 'We shall' opens the mouth wider; the 'i' in 'will' is not an easy vowel to sing well." Seeger also added some verses ("We'll walk hand in hand" and "The whole wide world around").

I first learned about Pete making the change in the book Seeger, Pete (1997). Where Have All The Flowers Gone – A Musical Autobiography. Bethlehem, PA: Sing Out. ISBN 1881322106.

The section of the Wikipedia article on the Role of the Highlander Folk School also mentions this factoid, that I like a lot:

"In 1957, Seeger sang for a Highlander audience that included Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., who remarked on the way to his next stop, in Kentucky, how much the song had stuck with him."

A PBS documentary on Pete not long ago, maybe after he died, also mentions Pete teaching the song to MLK at the Highlander School.

Remembering Bill Steele

In this issue, Steve Delap reflects on Bill Steele and his contributions to the folk music community.

I met Bill back in, I think, 1962 when I went to work for a little eight-page weekly in Marin county. He was working there as a reporter, and our mutual interest in folk music, Pete Seeger in particular, was topic No. 1.

One of the perks of working for a newspaper was receiving passes/tickets to concerts...one of the best was a pair of press passes to the 1963 Berkeley Folk Festival. Bill and I made good use of those. The featured performers that year included folks like Mance Lipscomb, Jean Ritchie, Barbara Dane, and, of course, PETE SEEGER, along with his father, Musicologist Charles Seeger. Bill took along his Pete Seeger-inspired Vega Long Neck Banjo for workshops, jams, and whatever. At one point, Bill and I were sitting on a bench near Sather Gate. Bill had just learned a lick in some workshop and was concentrating on "getting" it to the exclusion of anything else.

Meanwhile, I watched Charles Seeger take note of Bill's efforts and walk over to talk with him. Bill, seeing nothing but a pair of black dress shoes come into his field of vision, tried hard to ignore this possible interruption. When Bill finally looked up, Charles and I really enjoyed his expression of embarrassment and chagrin at having ignored one of his folk heroes.

We often made our way to a radio program called "The Midnight Special" broadcast on KPFA Friday nights from 11:30 to 1:00 or so. It was basically an Open Mic on the air, hosted by Gert Chiarito. Bill Steele, along with Peter Krug, Country Joe, Janet Smith, and many others played and developed their chops on the program. I played on occasion when shyness didn't get the better of me. I also got a third class radio license and got to engineer the program.

I lost track of Bill in 1964, when I was encouraged by the local Draft Board to return to college. I went North, and Bill went South. It was interesting later, to find out that we were actually vaguely related. Turns out relatives of my wife's father's family in Ithaca, N.Y. were also Mitchells. It's a small world....

Happy Birthday, Pete Seeger!

by Donna Scarlett

This May, Pete Seeger would have celebrated his 100th birthday. As such, a number of celebrations honoring his centennial day are planned around the Bay Area and the nation.

One such celebration will take place on May 30-June 1, when the San Francisco-based Kronos Quartet/ Kronos Performing Arts Association (KPAA) hosts its fifth annual music festival at SFJAZZ Center. The festival showcases singers, storytellers, and activists in four concerts and other events over the festival's three days.

To honor Pete Seeger's life and legacy, the Kronos ensemble will debut the first part of a project in collaboration with the FreshGrass Foundation, a non-profit dedicated to the support, creation, and preservation of grassroots music. On June 1, Todd Harvey, Library of Congress curator, will give a talk on Pete Seeger's contributions to peace and social justice. The talk will feature primary source materials of the American Folklife Center.

For more information about the festival, see p. 7.

He marched along, his banjo ringin'
He got ten thousand voices singin'.

With water clearer as she goes.
And thanks to Pete, we'll keep on swimmin' --
'Cause Pete, he never stopped his singin'.

ABOUT THE SONGWRITER

Peter McKee is a founding member of Clallam County, "Seattle's Slowest Rising Folk Group," in which he mostly plays a 1962 Vega Pete Seeger model long neck open-back banjo. Since 2012, McKee has been performing his one-man show: "Pete: The Songs and Times of Pete Seeger," which is offered as a free fund-raising tool to nonprofits, unions and other social justice groups whose goals are consistent with the ideals and political activism of Pete Seeger (1919-2014). See <https://sites.google.com/site/petesongsandtimes/home>.

Long an admirer of Pete Seeger, McKee submitted "Pete Got Us Singing" in a nation-wide song-writing contest in honor of Seeger's 90th birthday in 2009. The contest was ultimately canceled, because the organizer found all the songs to be good enough that she found she could not choose one over another. Says McKee, "The prize I did receive was to write a song I enjoy performing that continues to honor a man I greatly admire. And maybe, in time, it might even get sung by a few other people. Who knows?"

May 3, 2019 is Pete Seeger's centennial birthday and the day of a global celebration of his life.

2. I moved to Bremerton in 1942.

I learned to weld. I was the best one on our crew.
The work was hard, the heat would burn my lungs all day, but when the paycheck came we girls would feel O.K.

3. In 1943 in August 8 a.m.,
I'd not been sleepin' well, my mind was full of Jim.
There was a knock, a man in uniform stood there.
He said my Jim was dead. I hadn't seen him in two years.

4. In 1945 the war came to an end,
And on that very day the big boss, he came in.
He smiled and said, "My girls, the boys are comin' home You've earned a rest. Go home. Your work here now is done."

5. Picked up a scrap of metal, and I carved
my name full bore,
So my child would know I was a welder
in the war.

No place to go, I was a widow with a child,
So I waitressed and I cooked, and I married in a while.

6. Sometimes I see that scrap with my name carved in so deep,
And I recall the day the boss told me to leave.
How I felt like some old rag they'd tossed aside
As useless as my patriotic pride.

ABOUT THE SONGWRITER

Based in Bellinham, Linda Allen is celebrating fifty years as a working musician with a passion for writing and singing songs that inform, transform and heal. Currently, she works as a Hospice Clinical Musician, and is touring a multi-media presentation, "Here's to the Women!", to commemorate 100 years of the vote for women.

Linda notes: "Women took the place of men during WWII in shipyards and airplane plants but were fired as soon as the war ended. The women who continued to work, like my mother, were often guilt-ridden, or shamed by neighbors for working outside the home. When I got involved in the Washington Women's Heritage Project, I was inspired to write this song by this oral history from a Boeing welder."

'The day the war ended, every woman in there GOT IT. Leadman came 'round and says, 'Frances, tonight you can hang your torch up, your job's done; the war is over.' And on that day, I picked up a piece of scrap iron and lit my torch and wrote my name on it. That was in 1945. This is my proof for my grandchildren and great grand-children that I really was a burner in the wartime.'*

* That is, "got the boot."

"I did America proud and this is the thanks I get?"

wave—for potluck storage and reheating. The kitchen has plates, silverware, pans, and serving utensils. Please wash your own dishes, pots and pans, after use. Label leftovers you want saved. Labels are usually in an envelope on the refrigerator. IMPORTANT: The kitchen must be kept clean if we want to continue using it. Anyone who uses the kitchen at all, please clean up promptly.

HIKING: Several hiking trails begin at the camp: a self-guided historical trail about 3.5 miles long, and a nature trail about 2.5 miles long, among others.

Facilities

The camp's capacity is several hundred people, plenty of room. Many campsites have fire pits, and firewood is usually available.

Near the kitchen is an outdoor dining area and deck, with picnic tables and umbrellas and a machine with free ice. (Note: sometimes the machine doesn't work well, so it is advisable to bring some ice if you can.)

Also near the kitchen are the swimming pool, eight tent-cabins with cots, and a bathroom with showers and flush toilets. At the bottom of the hill, by the parking lot, is Cubland: a large flat site for tents, with nearby flush-toilet bathrooms and running water. RVs are welcome; they park in the parking lot.

We are not allowed to drive directly into campsites. Park in the parking lot or along the road near campsites and take gear into sites with carts provided by the camp the short distance to the campsites. Good news: eight new carts arrived last year.

The camp has neighbors directly across Bear Creek, so any music near the creek after 10:00 PM—the usual noise curfew—needs to be quiet. Please locate circles and jams that will last later than 10 PM away from both the creek and the Ranger's house.

Pitching In

Everyone over 12 (except day-use attendees) does at least an hour of duty: registration and parking, cleanup after the potluck, or camp cleanup. (Extra hours are appreciated, especially for cleanup.) Please sign up at the registration table right after arriving. If you can't show up for your chore, leave a note at registration so we can cover the time. Last day cleanup help is especially needed (vacate your site on time, and park in the lot, 'til cleanup is done).

Publicity

We want to publicize this campout widely to boost attendance so we can afford to keep coming to this location. Spread the word to all your friends who are interested in folk music! No need to be a Club member to attend the camp, although it is possible to join at camp. We appreciate greatly all who have helped publicize the camps in the past.

Membership forms (for new members and renewals) are available at the registration table and also online at www.sffmc.org. A SFFMC membership form link is at the bottom of the sffmc.org Home Page.

Pete Seeger Celebrations

Rise Up Singing is Collecting Events

by Peter Ross

Peter Blood and Annie Patterson, developers and editors of Rise Up Singing and Rise Again, and also good friends of the late Faith Petric, have created a special site at which they are collecting events that are taking place worldwide to celebrate the 100th anniversary of Pete’s birth. If you either know of an event that you’d like to submit, or want to see the events that are already listed there, visit www.riseupsinging.org/seeger/100th.

Here are the three California events that are listed there. Also, see elsewhere on this page for information about the three Pete Seeger events that will be happening at the June 8 San Francisco Free Folk Festival.
